Assessor's Report Shows that Washington Has Had Remarkable Building Growth in the Last Ten Years. Numerous New Dwellings Planned. Many Improvements to Be Made.

It was a dull week in real estate tion, and admired the arrangements, but decided to wait a few days before closing

A number of prominent dealers yesterday said they had operations in progress, but few of them could report anything but few of them could report anything tangible in the way of actual sales. The hopeful turn of the situation is that the prospective buyers say they will purchase, if they can find homes to suit at reasonable prices.

Among the sales of the week were: The school site by Joseph I. Weller for the Thomas E. Young estate, at the corner of M and Fourth streets southeast, for $7,23L.

Bargain days draw them out in crowds, but the benefit of fresh air and exercise is equalized by the rashness of neglecting luncheon at the usual hour. A reasonable shopper would make that the pivot of the trip.

FROM WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

Busy women are already beginning to lose the effect of their summer holiday mits the enjoyment of air and sunshine without the trouble of dressing for a walk, and that would entice many a woman who now buries herself indoors. Honestly, I believe the task of dressing and going out for a walk or a call freshens a woman. Too much of home is quite possible, and the loneliness most women find there during business hours is not wholesome when taken in large oses, day after day. We ape men in many ways, but we have not yet succeeded in imitating their easy methods of life. They are fond of stretching out on everybody. A roomy veranda is a comfort, because it affords exercise and per-

Men work hard for hours and play just as hard afterward. Women work hard, too, but cut out the play very often. Men want to rub elbows with humanity, to be a part of the life of the outside world, and the feminine impulse been carried out by Manager Charles is to avoid all that. A social life is wholesome and sane, unless it is carried too far, and the sociable woman is rarely a morbid one. A shining light of the musical world kept a dog for the avowed purpose of exercise. He said that the welfare of the animal gave him something to think about, and his evident joy Mrs. Jenness-Miller in Europe. Many of in outdoor freedom led his master into long walks that were never planned.
